The requirement to install a flexible and powerful graphics package at the Defense Communications Agency has represented one of the most challenging and complex tasks attempted by our applications programming staff. The software provided to us by your organization, and the patient and expert help given us by [redacted] have not only resulted in the installation of a graphics capability which exceeds our expectations but has also saved the government hundreds of thousands of dollars over the cost of alternative methods we investigated. This project has been a model of the kind of inter-agency cooperation for which all government agencies should strive: to provide the best of service for the least cost.

Please convey to [redacted] my most sincere thanks and appreciation for their enthusiastic and highly professional help.

Sincerely,

SAMUEL L. GRAVELY, JR.
